

FINAL GAME WITH BELOIT SATURDAY

Cards Will Go to Beloit on Saturday to Play Final Game of Series With the Fairies.

With the count now evened up with two games credited to each team, the Janesville Cardinals and the Beloit Fairies will finish the five game series Saturday at Beloit when the two teams meet at the Fairies' park. It was at first thought that the game would be held in Janesville on Sunday, but a conference between Manager Langdon and the Beloit manager resulted in the game being played in Beloit.

Janesville will have the same lineup which won the last two games for them. Spaid and Schoup will be on hand to do the twirling with Schoup starting the game and Spaid as the emergency man. The addition of Puckett and O'Connell, members of the Chicago Cubs team this season, made a great difference in the strength of the Cards. Both these men will be in their positions at shortstop and catcher. Puckett was the hitting hero of the last game at Beloit on Sunday and his work was mainly responsible for the Cards' victory.

Spaid will play first base, and if he performs as he has done in the past the Cards can be assured of some heavy hitting and good fielding. Puckett will play second and keeping things will play third base. Stewart, third base, in the outfield, Stewart, Miller and Hauger will don the Cardinal uniform.

The Fairies will start the game with their same lineup which has always performed well for them during the season when they won the championship of the Chicago League. The lineup, however, seems to be in response to the game on Saturday and Sunday, with the result that the Cards had an easy time. Now that the series is in question the Fairies will play a better game than they did in the past.

A large crowd of Janesville fans are expected to make the trip to witness the final battle which should prove interesting because of the closeness of the series and the fact that Janesville has a team which is on a par with the Fairies.

GOPHERS WILL NOT HAVE STRONG TEAM

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.—With its first gridiron battle set for next Saturday Minnesota's prospects of a run in the big ten conference race depend on how poorly its opponents fight, not on its own strength. War has completely leveled the Gopher squad almost completely, leaving only Captain Hauser, Ecklund and Kingsley as veterans to lead the recruits on Nov. 3.

At opening practice last night the team to form two eleven men. But with hard work, Coach Williams has over thirty candidates in Gopher moleskins now.

Secret practice has already started and vague rumors outside the football gates are that Coach Williams has uncovered some surprises on his squad. Ecklund's toe will probably save the day more than once this season.

The Gophers, the big warrior at opening practice punted 40 to 50 yards and made drop kicks nearly that distance. Captain Hauser kicked out of early scrimmage in excellent form and he counted on for some of the best Gopher line work, though he may be shifted to the backfield.

Loss of Vannest, who showed wonderful speed in several games last year at quarter, will leave a gap hard to fill in this year's machine. Vannest had been counted on by Coach Williams but announced last week he would not return to school. Williams is hunting another quarterback.

Among last year's second string expected to cap big ten honors this year for the Gophers are Vannest Williams, guard, Jordan, end, and Richards, backfield.

BIG LEAGUE TEAMS DRAFT NEW PLAYERS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Oct. 9.—The small number of minor league players drafted this year by the majors is an indication of the caution with which baseball is moving these precarious times. Fear of that biggest draft, the United States army, and a dozen other things is injecting a spirit of conservatism into the game it has never felt before.

The national commission had taken steps to protect clubs drafting players when it announced that, in case a player was drafted for the army, he would be turned back to the club from which he was taken and the purchase price returned to the club drafting him, but, just the same, big leaguers and the smaller classes are taking few chances.

The same thing has been true of the number of players purchased. Many players promising enough for a trip to the big show have been left in the minors and very simply because the big clubs didn't feel like taking chances.

There is only one more rock over which minor leagues must grow before they can see their way to prosper in baseball next season. The sale of players always has been one of their principal sources of revenue.

BOOKS FOR THE SOLDIERS.
The object of the "war library week" campaign being waged throughout the United States, under the direction of a committee appointed by the secretary of war and President Wilson, should have appealed strongly to the thoughtful citizen. If anyone entertains the impression that this movement for furnishing books for the soldiers was not really practical, a moment's consideration should convince him that the reverse is strictly true.

It is worth noting, at the start, that the chairman of the library week committee of the American Library association, the group of people already referred to as having charge of this undertaking, is Frank A. Vanderlip, who has just resigned the presidency of the largest bank in the country in order to contribute his services to the government without pay. And, out of the war, he is also an author, but no one will dispute that he is a practical man. The committee announces that it will buy books, build and maintain libraries at thirty-two training camps and cantonments of United States soldiers, sailors, and airmen at home and abroad. "The library," it adds, "must follow the soldier with his arms, recreational, and educational influences." While contributions have been invited of books of fiction, such as adventure, sea stories, detective stories, historical novels, and collections of short stories, books of drama, history, biography, heroism, travel in countries where the war is going on, books on patriotism, courage, and good citizenship, also books for the quadruped, as well as French grammar and dictionaries, yet the emphasis is now being put on contributions of non-fiction. Among the works which will need to be bought are technical books on aviation, wireless telegraphy, submarines, automobiles, signaling, drawing and lettering," says an exchange.

A million dollars for a million books for a million men" was the slogan of the campaign. The council directed those willing to help financially to leave the money they may wish to give at public libraries or banks, and to make checks payable to the Library War Council. There are convincing evidences that the movement is popular. In Janesville, however, according to the statement of a member of the committee, while the response was shown by gifts in small amounts was hearty, there is need of contributions in larger sums in order to make up the city's proportioned total of $500. It is not improbable that this situation is typical of conditions in other parts of the country. This means of helping to win the war, as well as of bringing genuine assistance, greater intelligence, and wholesome entertainment to the defenders of the nation and of democracy, is open to all, since ways are found for presenting the opportunity to men, women, and children generally in their everyday haunts. With the appeal and the organization reaching throughout the country, it will be surprising if the required fund is not properly oversubscribed.

CONSERVE ENERGY.
One of the great things in this life is to conserve the human energy that is wasted in useless, senseless, and worry over trifles. The anxiety wasted in this direction is perhaps the most wearing upon the nerve centers and wastes the tissues of both brain and body. There are some people who can never permit anyone else to have an opinion of their own and apparently lay awake nights to think of some imaginary evil that confronts either themselves or their friends. They are not only a constant nuisance, but they waste energy that might be directed in some other channel and they disturb the equilibrium of others by their bickering and senseless debates. In this class is the man with a personal grievance who wishes to tell it to everyone. The person who thinks this world is all very broad, they have not been consulted as to certain material matters which wiser and better equipped men have decided for the general good. These are the persons who perhaps are like the fawn a dog has to worry him and make him forget he is a dog, but just the same they could be among the missing and the world would be the better off for their absence.

WIPING OUT ILLITERACY.
A big campaign has been started in New York against illiteracy. A supervisor of immigrant education has been appointed and the department believes that half of the illiteracy can be done away within a year and the rest soon taken care of. It is a movement that should be followed up everywhere. It is a very peculiar thing that this country spends billions to educate its children, providing costly school houses and an army of teachers. Yet exceedingly little has ever been done to educate the hosts of illiterate aliens that come in here. Night schools are conducted more or less in cities, but there are great districts of the country that never have any of even these. The evening school is often very unsatisfactory.

ing them to speak phrases useful in trading at stores and working in homes and mills and on the farms. Employees should assist in this campaign by making their alien help realize that they will never get ahead in this country until they can read and write and speak English intelligibly.

THE GOOD OFFICER.
It is surprising how big some men feel when they get to be corporals or sergeants. They swell around as if they were generals, and issue orders not so much to get things done, as to display their authority and enjoy it. They strut about a camp and will scarcely speak to private soldiers, even if former neighbors and friends, are now a lower order of being. It should be one of the benefits to the officers' training camps that this type of man has been largely weeded out. The qualities that make a good military officer are not common and it is an inborn gift. The soldiers for the good of all, have learned to submit their individual wills. Many times they are called upon to do things that seem poor judgment to them, but it is theirs to obey and not to question. Where the individual will and judgment is thus subordinated to one man or group of men, the commanders need a very special endowment of judgment and good feeling in order not to abuse their extraordinary power. If they must assert their superiority of judgment, that superiority must be manifest or the officer will obviously be unfitted for his responsibility.

The competent officer does more than issue orders. He should be a student of the capacities and the condition of his men, and protect them from such weaknesses as may interfere with their usefulness. If soldiers can feel that they are being watchfully looked after they will go to a great deal of personal drag and endurance to please their superiors. Some eccentricities of manner on the part of commanders will be tolerated and strict discipline will be accepted. Many of the soldiers are reckless young fellows with little thought of their health and little experience in caring for themselves. The officers should watch over them as a father does over his boys. If this is done the morale of a fighting force can be greatly improved.

WHEATLESS AND MEATLESS.
While the present call for a wheatless and a meatless day is purely voluntary on the part of the individual, steps are being considered to make a national regulation. Many things can be ordered during war times for the public good and conservation of food supplies and this is apparently one of them. It is no real hardship to forego meat on a Tuesday, and wheat products on a Wednesday. If the individual really wants to do something that will be part of their "bit" they can follow the suggestion and conform to the wishes of the men who have charge of this war within a war, that of the conservation of the food supply of this nation.

Evansville News

Youth Injured by Automobile.
Evansville, Oct. 9.—An accident occurred Sunday which seems almost a miracle that the victim was not killed outright or badly crippled. Loyd Taylor, a farmer living on the farm that was occupied by the seventeen-year-old son of a couple for so many years as a boy, was riding his bicycle along that road, in turning out for a coming automobile the lad did not see another one coming and was struck and run completely over by this second car. The roadster, owned by a Mr. Crahen of Beloit. The bicycle was completely demolished and the boy, who was badly bruised, escaped being struck by any of the automobile wheels as it passed over his body, so that no bones were broken. Yesterday he was getting along as comfortably as possible.

Barn Burns.
A barn belonging to Taylor and Showers on the Janesville road, burned to the ground yesterday, together with its contents, having been hit by the barn with hay. The cause of the fire is unknown. Misfortunes many times never come single for it was Mr. Taylor's son and only child who was injured in the automobile accident yesterday.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Miss Julia Sanderson was born in that he brought her to New York and Springfield, Mass. Her father was Albert Sackoff, a well known actor and stage manager. Miss Sanderson had stage career when a very little child in a stock company in Philadelphia in which her father was the manager. She was a great favorite and earned much from the variety of roles in which she appeared. A New York manager, happened to see her, was so impressed by her versatility and general talent, in a play called "The Little Duke,"

George Edwards' management. While there Charles Frohman happened to see her and she made an instant impression on him, so much so that he brought her back to the United States and put her in a play called "The Dairy Maid." Then followed "The Arcadian" and after that Miss Sanderson appeared with Donald Brian in "The Siren." Her first starring venture was in "The Sunshine Girl," which was most successful. Then followed "The Girl From Utah," with its phenomenal run. Last season Miss Sanderson starred with Joseph Cawthorne and Donald Brian in "Sybil." Miss Sanderson is now busily at work rehearsing "The Rambler Rose," in which she is to appear with Joseph Cawthorne.

Miss Sanderson has remained impervious to all offers to appear on the screen, no matter how tempting the offer might be, until recently when she consented to make a picture, "The Runaway." All those who have had an opportunity to judge say that Miss Sanderson is one of the best photographic subjects that has yet been discovered.

DO YOU REMEMBER? When Helen Gardner played the first "vampire" role for the screen, and Louis Glauco was ingenue in a Chicago stock company?

When the "Flying A" forces produced in Chicago, and their cast included Warren Kerrigan, Vivian Rich, Louise Lester and Jack Richardson, while Colin Campbell was a director for the organization?

When Leslie Carter did "The Heart of Maryland" for the films, and Herbert Brenon directed the production?

When Pathea introduced their first trick films, and you were satisfied to watch a 16 degree miniature acrobats perform on the hand of a buxom dame?

When films never were censored, and "The Life and Adventures of Billy the Kid" was one of the most popular blood-and-thunder releases ever issued by Selig?

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Oct. 8.—The Orfordville branch of the Red Cross submit to the public this statement and make this appeal:

We have seen and analyzed the following articles: 2 suits of pajamas, 2 shoulder wraps, 2 water bottle bags, 4 pairs of bed socks, 4 fracture pillows, 12 dog leashes, 16 handkerchiefs, 21 down wash cloths, 700 gun wipers.

Comfort bags have been given to the boys who have gone into camp from this community and a supply of knickerbockers for others when called. Knickerbockers being 25 different articles which will be completed October 15th.

Calls have been sent out for garments of any kind and any size—anything warm, dark and durable for either sex. These can be made from any kind of material; discarded garments can be put to excellent use in clothing refugees in the devastated parts of Europe; old stockings can be made into baby socks; pieces of any kind of material that will not rot can be cut into three-inch squares for gun wipers; small cotton scraps are useful for piecing into baby quilts; old kid gloves make excellent wind shield vests.

More money, more members, more workers and more material are needed. Can we not double our membership? The Red Cross rooms are in the Osgood and Peterson building and meetings are held every Friday at two o'clock.

A Sunday school rally day program was given at the Methodist church on Sunday. The exercises were greatly enjoyed and a general collection was received.

Several from the village went to Madison today (Tuesday) to attend the meeting of the county councils of defense from the various counties, which are holding a two days session here. Others are planning to go on Wednesday morning.

There was no Sunday service at the local Lutheran church, the pastor holding services at Mount Hope that day.

Rev. H. W. Rogers gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Sunday evening on "Martin Luther and His Work." It being the 400th anniversary of the beginning of the Reformation.

R. K. M.: Did you notice in the paper that Charles Phillips, the anti-conscriptionist, has decided to get married? Being that he was such a radical speaker against conscription I thought that he was AGAINST war. And now he's married! Oh, it's a funny world.

Yours till the kitchen sinks. EDDIE BAUMAN.

William S. Hart has a powerful and congenial role as the frontier missionary in "The Disciple." The story is that of a strong, pure enthusiast, who is mated to a pretty woman without strength of character. Dorothy Dalton, as the wife, brings out interestingly the personality of the non-moral, shallow creature, who leaves her little girl and virile, worthy husband for the flashy gambler-type of saloon-keeper. Hart is powerful by his restraint, as well as by his facial expressions. There is a great climax in the last scene.
